UNFAILING

EYE PRESERVERS!

The large and increasing Sales of our celebrated

Perfected Spectacles

AND

EYE GLASSES,

In Massillon and vicinity by our Agent,

Louis Schaufele, Jeweler,

Is a sure proof of their great superiority over the ordinary glasses We were satisfied that the reality of the advantages secured by their use, viz:

The Brilliancy of Sight!

The perfect ease & comfort,

And the readily ascertained improvement of the eyes, continuous and abiding as it invariably is, would be sufficient to insure their almost general adoption by the residents of this locality. And the result has proved we were right—as an assistant to and Preservers of the Sight.

To extreme old age they are unapproachable, and are really cheapest, because lasting so many years without change being necessary.

Mr. Louis Schaufele, Jeweler, is the sole and only agent in this locality, and has always on hand a full assortment of

Gold, Silver, Steel, and Shell Frames,

Suitable for every difficulty of the sight.

CAUTION!—We wish it distinctly understood that we do not Supply or Employ Peddlers, here or elsewhere. Beware of their false representations to the contrary.

J M KIMBALL, Gen. Ticket Agent.

Autocrat Horse Hay Fork.

To supply the demand of this last and best Fork patented we have opened a new department in our business; and to give it an immediate introduction we shall pay the largest commission ever offered. Agents wanted in every township. Farmers and agents send for a circular at once. The trade supplied. Address the secretary, 304 tf J. K. WILDER, Akron.

NO HUMBUG—We do not wish to inform you reader, that Dr Wonderful, or any other man, has discovered a remedy that cures all diseases of the mind, body or estate, and is designed to make our sublunary sphere a blissful paradise, to which heaven itself shall be but a side show, but we do wish to inform you that thousands of cases of catarrh in its worst forms and stages, has been cured by Dr Sage's catarrh remedy, and the proprietor will pay $500 for a case it cannot cure. It may be procured by mail for sixty cents, by addressing R V Pierce, M D, Buffalo, N Y. for sale by most druggists everywhere. 2t

GOOD ADVICE.—Let our possessions be what they may—marble palaces, broad lands, magnificent plate, or caskets of precious stones—they all sink in the balance against Heaven's great boon, HEALTH, and they cannot be enjoyed without it. And yet how little is it valued, and how carelessly preserved. The laws of nature cannot be violated with impunity. Night revelry, luxurious living, irregularity of meals, and a disordered appetite, will gradually destroy the power and activity of the stomach. How many ladies and gentlemen eat and drink disease at late suppers, and arise in the morning with headache, loss of appetite, feeling languid and unrefreshed. There can be no medical remedy that will turn lead into food, or poisoned drinks into nutriment, but medical science can assist nature, supply exhausted fluids, and to a great extent correct the effects of disease. In all cases such as the above, we recommend Plantation Bitters. You will find them just the thing—at the same time a most delicious tonic and appetizer.

MAGNOLIA WATER.—Superior to the best imported German Cologne, and sold at half the price.—1y274

NERVOUS DISORDERS.

A low state of health will produce a variety of nervous disorders, for the cure of which Mishler's Herb Bitters is a specific, and as such is endorsed by the best physicians.

Rum's Doings.

The Temperance Era, that able and zealous advocate of prohibition, under the direction of brother Spencer of Cleveland, continues to admonish politicians to take higher ground on the great temperance question. An argument in this behalf may be found every week in the Era in the following shape—from it there is no appeal—it is but a small part of rum's weekly doings:

George Harding was killed on the 20th, by an express train on the Little Miami road, near Deerfield, Ohio. He was intoxicated, and walking on the track.

Barney Dagour was fatally stabbed in Philadelphia, last week, by a man named Gellespie, who was employed in liquor compounding and rectifying establishment. Of course liquor was the cause of the stabbing.

The Reading Mænnerchor, a musical organization of respectable ladies and gentlemen, enjoyed a general drunk in a lager beer park the other day. They called it a picnic.

J. Keenan, a tavern-keeper at Germantown was charged with the larceny of some money. Michael Glancey testified that he went into Keenan's place drunk, and handed him his purse to take out the price of his drinks, but nearly all the money was taken out. The defence was that the exact amount due was taken, and good character.

A brutal husband at Passaic, N. J., the other day dragged his wife out of bed gave her an unmerciful thrashing, because she had enlarged the family by the addition of a female member, whereas he had set his heart on having a boy. When the birth of a girl was announced the man went out, got drunk and, after returning, as soon as he was alone with the sick woman, he cursed her for having disappointed him, dragged her upon the floor, kicked and struck her most brutally.

Jacob Sigler, of Miffin, Ohio, died on the 28th ult, from wounds received in a drunken spree, about two weeks previous, at which time a man named Kissling struck him in the head with a cobble stone. Kissling has disappeared.

Two more victims to the destroying power of alcohol have been offered up, Dr. M H. Quinn of Reesville, Clinton county, Ohio, committed suicide last week, after indulging excessively in strong drink. The Aid to Progress of Wilmington says, in this connection:

"What a solemn and awful lesson to the living drunkard! Here was a brilliant young man, of more than ordinary knowledge of his profession for one of his years, a man of warmest impulse, and kindly feelings for his fellow creature,—who that knew him has not a tear to shed over his mistaken, misguided deed?" But a few days previous to the deplorable death of Dr. M. H. Quinn, Dr. John Quinn, cousin of the former, and one of the brightest physicians of southern Ohio, dropped dead in Vienna, Clinton Co., from the destroying power of alcohol.

A Great Sermon by a Little Preacher---Papa Goes There.

BY MRS. C. A. SOULE.

'Mayn't I go with you, papa? please say I may, won't you?'

The words were uttered in a plaintive and sadly entreative tone, the hands of the speaker clasping the knees of the listener.

It was a boy of seven years who lisped them; a beautiful boy, with a with a fair high brow, around which there clustered a glorious wreath of auburn curls; with dark flashing eyes; cheeks rosy with health, lips like the cherries of summer, and a voice like the birds that taste them There were tears in those eyes at this time, though, and the dimpled mouth was quivering.

It was a man of some thirty-five who listened to this plea; a man who had been of noble looks and princely bearing: Ay, had been! for the blighted truth was written over his form, and face. His locks were matted, his forehead scrowling, his eyes red, but not with tears; there were furrows on his cheeks, too, and a brutish look to the expression of his lips. Twice did the little boy address him ere he answered. Then pushing the child rudely from him, he said, in a stern voice, 'No, no. It's no place for you.'

Again those fair, small hands encircled the knees.

'You go papa. Why cant I go too? Do let me go.'

For a moment the heart of the inebriate seemed to wake from its sleep. He shuddered as he thought of the character of the place his pure-souled boy would enter. He took the child tenderly in his arms and kissed him as of old; then putting him down, he said kindly:

'You must not ask me to take you there. It is no place for little boys, and seizing his hat hurried from the room, murmuring to himself as he paced the way to the brilliant bar room, 'and no place for men either. Would to God I had never gone.'

For a long time Willie stood just where his father had left him; then turning to the few embers that faintly glowed upon the hearth, he sat down in his little chair, and resting his head upon his mother's lap, said earnestly:

'Mamma, why isn't that pretty store a good place for little boys? Papa loves to go there.'

It was a trying question to the poor heart-broken woman. She had so far kept from her son the knowledge of his father's sin. She could not bear that he should look with shame upon him, or that his pure and gentle heart should thus commune with so intense a grief. Kindly she toyed with his long ringlets for a while, then said endearingly: 'Papa knows better than you what is best for his little boy When you grow older you will learn why he does not wish to take you'

Then rising she carefully put down her babe upon its little bed, and tied on her hood and cloak.

'Mind the cradle, now, Willie; I'll come back soon, and then you shall have some supper, and a nice fire to sit by, too,' and taking a large basket of ironed clothes she went out. A wealthy mother would have been frightened at the thought only of leaving so young a boy at nightfall all alone with an infant to care for, and an open fire to sit beside. But poor Mrs M—— knew well she could trust Willie with his sister, and as for burning up, there were not coals enough to thaw his fingers. No she did not fear to leave him, for he had thus been left many a time, and always carefully obeyed her.

And he meant to now; but poor little fellow his thoughts would wander to that brilliant corner store, with her he knew his father always went at evening and his brain was busy with eager wanderings. He knew his father loved to go, and there must be something that he liked, for he never came home again till long after Willie was asleep. What lay behind those scarlet curtains was a mystery he sought in vain to unravel.

At length he whispered eagerly, as if to encourage a longing wish, 'Papa used to tell me if I wanted to know any thing very bad to persevere and I would find out. Now I do want to know what makes him love to go there so—I know that there must be pretty things behind those windows. I shouldn't wonder'—and his cheeks were glowing—'if it was like a fairy house. Why can't I go?'

Poor Willie! Temptation to know was too strong to be resisted; so he hunted through the closet for a candle, for he was a thoughtful little fellow, and would not leave his little sister to the only danger that menaced her. He found a bit of tallow dip, and lighting it, drew the stand close to her, that the flames might scare away the rats and mice should they sally out ere his return.

'I won't stay long, pretty dear, said he, pressing a tender kiss on her sleeping lids, and drawing the blanket close over her fair arms. 'No, I'll come back soon; but I do want to take one peep.' Swiftly his little feet bore him over the pavement, and in a trice he stood beside the curtained window.

'How light it is, and how they laugh It must be funny in there.'

A cold, November blast swept round the corner as he spoke, penetrating his thin summer clothes, and causing his flesh to quiver, and his teeth to chatter.

'I don't believe they'd hurt me, I'm such a little boy, and I'm so cold out here,' he said as he pushed the door carefully from him slipping in and closing it without the least bit of noise. For a moment he was bewildered by the light and clatter, but finding that no one appeared to notice him, he stole toward the glowing grate, and spread out his purple palms before the blaze. The group of men that encircled the bar were drinking when he entered. Soon, however, they sat down their glasses and dispersed about the room.

'Halloo,' said one in a loud tone, as going to the fire he spied little Willie. 'What are you doing here, my little fellow? Who are you, and what do you want?'

'I don't want anything only to see what you do here. My name is Willie M——. My papa loves to come here, and it looked so pleasant through the window I thought I'd come too. But I must not stay long for I've left the baby alone.'

The man's tones were softened as he spoke again to him.

'And where is your mother, boy?

'And where is your mother, boy?

'O, she's gone to take home the wash, sir. Papa don't get as much work as he used to once and we're very poor now, and she has to help him now.'

'And does it look as pleasant in here as you thought it would, my child?'

'O, it does, sir. I don't wonder papa loves to come here so much, it's so cold and dark at home. But I should think he would bring mamma and me and little sis. How she would laugh to see this fire and all these pretty bottles, and those flowers with lights in them. 'Please, sir, said he earnestly,' and he seized the rough hands of the listener, 'please sir, tell me why little boys can't come here with their fathers?'

'For God's sake do not tell him, Bancroft,' said a deep anguished voice. 'He deems me pure and holy. Heavens! What a wretch I am! My boy—my boy!' and Willie was clasped in his father's arms—'you have saved me from earth's vilest hell. Here with my hands on thy sinless brow, I promise never again to touch the cup I've drank so deep. And my brothers in sin, as you value your soul's salvation tempt me not to break my vow. Help me, heaven—help me, men, so to live hereafter, that papa may take his boy along—that if papa goes there, Willie may go too.'

Silently the door closed after them, and silence dwelt in the saloon behind them. The preacher had been there in cherub form, and crazy, loose unholy thought, or light and ribald jest was hushed. One by one they stole away and many a wife wore smiles that night; nor did the old bar tender, even, curse the little one that robbed him of so many dimes. Too deeply in his heart had sunk the voice of that cherub preacher.

'Don't you like me, papa? Are you cross at me?' asked little Willie; while they stood a few moments on the pavement; for the scene in the bar-room was an enigma to the child, and he half feared a reprof.

'I was thinking what mamma would like best for supper,' said the father.

'Was you? was you? was the eager question in a gladsome voice. 'O then I know you ain't cross. O, get oysters and crackers and tea, papa; and a candle, because there is only a piece. And please, papa, tell mamma not to be cross at me 'cause I left the baby. I don't believe she will, though, 'cause you wouldn't perhaps have come home yet, and she does love to have you home so much. Oh, I feel just like crying, I feel so glad.'

'And I feel like crying too,' said his father, solemnly; and ere midnight he did cry, and his wife, but they were holy tears washing his heart of the dust that had gathered on its beauty and her's of the sorrow that had draped it like a pall.

A Blessing in Disguise.

We heard yesterday of an incident, from which, had we the space to spare, a first class romance might be written up. Some time last fall a young lady came to St Joseph from the East, to spend the winter with a relative. Unassuming, handsome, graceful and intelligent, she created a most favorable impression with those who enjoyed the pleasure of her acquaintance, and formed an agreeable addition to the social circle in which she moved. She was remarkably retired and quiet in her manners, and studiously sought to avoid all ostentatious display in her apparel, but at the same time exhibited in her dress the most exquisite taste, and in her manners the most elegant refinement.

Shortly after the lady's arrival she was called upon by a young gentleman (a resident of this county,) who had formed her acquaintance in the east, and soon after his visits became frequent and his attentions marked and devoted. It was noticed as the friendship of the two ripened into intimacy that the lady began to institute in a very cautious manner, inquiries for the purpose of ascertaining whether the gentleman had the least idea of her history and condition, and particularly of her financial affairs. These inquiries were prosecuted for some time, and seemed to have resulted satisfactorily. At last after a courtship of some months, she committed her happiness and fortune to the care of the gentleman alluded to, and the celebration of the nuptials were duly recorded in the early part of the present spring. The happy couple immediately started to the east, and are now residing at the former home of the bride.

And now comes the sequel. The quiet and unassuming young lady was in reality the possessor of immense wealth and the undoubted heiress of an estate worth over $4,000,000—a fact wholly unknown at the time, even to the gentleman who had sought her hand and heart. She had taken this method to test the sincerity of her admirer, and finding his heart the true gold, had committed unhesitatingly a golden treasure, and a pure warm heart to her keeping, without even permitting the many gallant youths of St. Joseph to catch the faintest idea of the glittering prize apparently within their reach. The parties to this romantic affair are now living happily together, and it is not probable that the agreeably disappointed husband will ever move to Chicago and apply for a divorce on account of the innocent fraud that was practiced upon him.

We give the above incident exactly as it occurred, and can assure our readers that it is true throughout.

SEA ON FIRE.—A phenomenon of a most extraordinary nature has lately been witnessed by the inhabitants of the borders of the Caspian sea. This huge salt lake is dotted with numerous islands which produce yearly a large quantity of naphtha, and it is no uncommon occurrance for fires to break out in the works and burn for many days before they can be extinguished. Early last month, owing to some subterraneous disturbances, enormous quantities of this inflammable substance were projected from the naphtha wells, and spread over the entire surface of the water, and becoming ignited, notwithstanding, every precaution, converted the whole sea into the semblance of a gigantic flaming punch bowl, many thousands of square miles in extent. The fire burnt itself out in about forty-eight hours, leaving the surface strewed with dead bodies of innumerable fishes. Herodotus mentions a tradition that the same phenomenon was once before observed by the tribes inhabiting the shores of the Caspian sea.

The fifteenth amendment, abolishing all distinctions on account of color, has been ratified by some twenty-five states and but three more are required to add it to the fundamental law of the land. The democracy of Ohio two years ago made a terrible crow when the word white which was proposed to be erased from the state constitution failed by a large majority. But they will have to face the music now, for Uncle Sam is making the question a national one, and all that copperheadism can do it cannot avert this result. The negroes of Ohio will soon be voters as the same class now are in Virginia and many of the southern states. Two years ago we placed the words, Constitutional amendment—YES, at the head of this paper, and there they are yet, and we expect them to remain in that position until equal suffrage honors our state.

The cop papers are just now praising Gen Rosecrans, their nominee for governor, as being a bully boy—just the man they want. It would be interesting to pick up some of the editorials of these same papers, that came to light in 1862 3, and even since, and see how they compare with the present ebullitions. In the days of the war old Rosy's business was to kill off copperheads and banish traitors, which he did with a will. Now the cops say that they never change—if so—has Rosecrans changed his base?

The democracy of Stark county at some unknown (to the public) time and place nominated the following ticket: For state senator, Hugh Bleakley; representatives, Joseph Thompson and James Slentz; probate judge, Harvey Laughlin; sheriff, R A Dunbar; treasurer, John Steel; prosecuting attorney, Wm A Lynch; coroner, Adam Hammersmith; infirmary director, George Fessler. The end.

The tariff question is assuming more and more importance among politicians these days. Especially is the New York Tribune paying much attention to its discussion, as Mr Greeley produces weekly essays, each of considerable length, in favor of what he calls protection. On the other side such authorities as Wm. C. Bryant, Judge Chase, Gerritt Smith, and men of considerable eminence and renown, are as decidedly for free trade. It may be a mistake, but it seems to us that the doctrine of the last named party is correct—let trade be as free as the winds of heaven.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINATIONS. — The state convention of this party met at Columbus on the 7th inst, and nominated the following ticket; Gen. W. S. Rosecrans for governor; T J. Godfrey, lieut. governor, W. J. Gilmore, supreme judge; Stephen Buhrer, treasurer; J. W. Connell, attorney general; Ben. Churchill, board of public works.

A protracted series of resolutions was adopted, the alpha and omega of which is constitution—constitution, slightly branching off to resolve the late legislative action as highly righteous and indispensable, but not a word about the "everlasting nigger." This is something exceedingly new under the sun for such a convention, as heretofore all such assemblages of that political faith never failed to pay great attention to the African. The Cincinnati Enquirer says the convention was very noisy and unruly, plainly indicating want of harmony.

In choosing a candidate for governor it is charged that Vallandigham helped slaughter judge Ranney, the best and ablest man of that party in Ohio. Pendleton would not have the honor, and others, among whom was citizen Carey, could not get it. After several efforts Gen Rosecrans, now minister to Mexico, was selected, and the choice was ratified by volumes of bitter curses. One Billy Glass denounced the nominee in words more pointed than respectful. That is quite natural. Every true blue copperhead in 1862, when the cause for the union was most gloomy, was doing all he could for the rebellion, by discouraging enlistments, aiding traitors, clamoring for a dissolution of the union, denouncing the war as a failure, forming traitorous secret societies, and doing everything he could to subvert liberty and establish slavery all over the country. It was at this period, also, that Gen. Rosecrans sent Vallandigham across the lines, with an escort, and thus put him among his true friends, where his head sympathizers were. Early in 1863 the general wrote the following patriotic, "loil" letter in response to resolutions of commendation in his behalf, adopted by the Ohio legislature. Such a spirit as he manifested aided in generating an enthusiasm in behalf of the union cause, that the memorable Fourth of July, 1863, witnessed Lee discomfitted at the bloody battle of Gettysburg, and saw Grant master of the situation by the U. S. (unconditional surrender) of Pemberton to Grant at Vicksburg. These reminiscences may be pleasant for the party to contemplate in the coming political campaign. But here is the letter of Gen. Rosecrans full of "loil" sentiments, an honor equally to his head and heart. The sentiment he expresses when alluding to the peace party of these memorable days is as much to the point now as then—"He who entertains the sentiment is fit only to be a slave: he who utters it, at this time, moreover, is a traitor to his country, who deserves the scorn and contempt of all honorable men."

Headqrs. Dep. of the Cumberland, Murfreesboro, Tenn., Feb. 3, 1863.

To the Honorable the General Assembly of the State of Ohio:

The resolution of thanks passed by you, honorable body to the army of the Cumberland, its commanding general and his staff has been duly received and published to the troops of this command. On behalf of all I return you heartfelt thanks.

This is indeed a war for the maintenance of the constitution—and the laws—nay, for national existence—against those who have despised our honest friendship, and driven us to defend our country and our homes. By foul and willful misrepresentation of our motives and intentions, persistently repeated, they have arrayed against us our own fellow citizens, bound to us by the triple ties of consanguinity, geographical position and commercial interest.

Let no man among us be base enough to forget this, or fool enough to trust an oligarchy of traitors to their friends, to civil liberty, and human freedom. Voluntary exiles from home and friends for the defense and safety of all, we long for the time when gentle peace shall again spread her wings over our land; but we know no such blessing is possible while the unjust and arbitrary power of the rebel leaders confronts and threatens us. Crafty as a fox, cruel as a tiger, they cried, "no coercion," while preparing to strike us. Bully like, they proposed to fight us, because they said they could whip five to one, and now, when driven back, they whine "no invasion," and promise us, of the west permission to navigate the Mississippi, if we will be "good boys," and do as they bid us.

Wherever they have the power, they drive before them in their ranks the southern people, and they would also drive us. Trust them not. Were they able they would invade and destroy us without mercy. Absolutely assured of these things I am amazed that any one could think of peace on any terms. He who entertains the sentiment is fit only to be a slave; he who utters it, at this time, moreover, is a traitor to his country, who deserves the scorn and contempt of all honorable men.

When the power of the unscrupulous rebel leaders is removed, and the people are free to consider and act for their own interests, which are common with ours under this government, there will be no great difficulty in fraternization. Between our tastes and social life there are fewer differences than between those of the northern or southern provinces of England or Ireland.

Hoping the time may speedily come when the power of the perfidious and cruel tyrants of this rebellion having been overthrown, a peace may be laid on the broad foundation of national unity and equal justice to all, under the constitution and laws,

I remain your fellow citizen,
W. S. ROSECRANS, Maj. Gen.

This nomination looks as if it is one of that sort that may be denominated the Good Lord or good devil class—it was conceived in despair, and who knows how it will end?

The Virginia election for state officers, congressmen, &c., took place last Wednesday, and the result seems to please everybody. Walker, who was called a conservative republican, candidate for governor, was elected by some 30,000 or more majority over Wells, a radical. The democracy are highly pleased and claim it as their victory, though they had no real candidate of their party. The president is also reported as pleased, while republican papers are quite as well satisfied as any of them. Among the candidates elected were eighteen negro members of the legislature, and a negro congressman. Then they adopted a free constitution, which gives colored as well as white people a chance to vote and hold office. Will the democracy show their roosters over this part of the election?

There are favored spots in our own as well as other lands, where the curses of liquor selling and drunkenness are not inflicted on the people. Natural as can be, these are quiet, orderly communities, and desirable places at which to live and raise a family. Middleton township, Columbiana county, is thus favored, not a dirty grogshop sends forth its poisonous fumes to craze and murder the people. That township, we may be assured, has no representatives in the county or state prison; and its people are comparatively free from litigation arising from quarrels so inseparable from vicinities of a contrary class. Potter county, Pennsylvania, is also reported to be similarly blessed, and the consequence is they have no jail or poorhouse, and but little use for even a courthouse. Their representatives in prisons or poorhouses are scarce, if any at all, while their local taxes will be comparatively light. The reason why these portions of our country are thus freed from the blight of intemperance is, that the people, vigorously enforced legal evasion, and crushed out the drunkard making business by the strong arm of the law.

July 5th, 1869.

MR EDITOR:—No one need tell me again that negroes cannot farm. I passed by a farm a few days ago, containing 160 acres, and 116 acres of that in corn, which is all managed by one negro man by the name of William Holliday; and this corn is the best I have seen this season. I saw six negroes plowing in the cornfield and it looked like down south: I got out of my buggy and hitched my horse, and went up to the top of the hill and looked over the corn; it looked green and delightful.

MR. EDITOR: Please let this have a place in your paper, as I am a democrat, and want the rest of my democratic friends to know that this Holliday understands farming, and I am now prepared to receive all such negroes and take them by the hand and walk with them to the ballot box.

"EUREKA."

PENOYER'S

Great Brazilian Remedy for

PILES.

The Latest Medical Discovery of the Age.

A Medicine that is Warranted to Cure,

And has no rival aside from surgical interferences, and then it proclaims itself the victor. This medicine has been thoroughly tested during the past three years, to satisfy all familiar with its merits, that it is not only a palliative, but that it actually removes the disease itself. The

Eureka Pile Remedy

OR BRAZILIAN OIL

is not only used locally (as principally all remedies, heretofore have been) but is also administered internally, which is the only rational theory, as the primary object in the cure of any disease, is first to remove the pain and then remove the cause. This is more readily accomplished by regulating the liver and kidneys, and imparting health and vigor to the mucous membrane of the whole alimentary canal. Beside the medicine is specific in its action, completely controling the circulation of the blood in the hemorrhoidal vessels. We warrant our compound to be purely vegetable. Simple and harmless in its action, as the most delicate tolerate it well. It corrects deranged nutrition or deficient circulation of the blood. In short, it makes the pallid cheek bloom like the rose by imparting health and vigor to the whole system.

Hemetite, Jefferson Co. Mo. January 1, 1869.

Mr J PENOYER—Dear Sir—I have used your Eureka Remedy, or Brazilian Oil, and find it a sure for piles. I have suffered with them for several years, and have tried numerous other remedies, but never had anything to relieve me so soon as your medicine has. I can truly say it cured me in less than twenty-four hours, and I have not been troubled with them since.
Yours, &c, SAMUEL ALLERTON.

Massillon, O, March 3, 1869.

Mr J PENOYER—Sir: I wish to say that one bottle of the Brazilian Pile Remedy has entirely cured my wife. She has been afflicted for years. We can safely recommend it to all afflicted as a sure cure.
Respectfully S. C. McDONALD.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.—I hereby certify that I am personally acquainted with Messrs Samuel Allerton, of Hemetite, Jefferson Co., Mo., John Benn, Massillon, O, J. H. Hardgrove, James Truitt, T. H. Stansbury, John B. Wert and Westley Donaldson, also of Massillon and Z. B. Johnson, of Alliance, O, and take pleasure in certifying that they are men of good moral character and that full faith and credit are due and can safely be given to all the matters and things set forth in these several certificates in reference to the efficacy of the "Brazilian Remedy" for Hemorrhoids or Piles.

Witness my official signature and seal, the day and year above written.

We, the Druggists of Massillon, call the attention of our customers to the letters, published below of the wonderful efficacy of Dr Roback's Stomach Bitters, Dr. Roback's Scandinavian Blood Purifier, and Dr. Roback's Scandinavian Blood Pills. We have been selling these medicines long enough to know that they are all they are recommended to be, and that the certificates of cures published are true.

DR. C. W. ROBACK,

Dear Sir:—Last fall my wife had the Liver Complaint so bad she was able to sit up but a few minutes at a time. I had a physician doctoring her for some time, but the medicine he gave her seemed to do her but little or no good. I was advised to get her a bottle of your Bitters, and let her try them, and see if they would help her. So I thought if one bottle would be good two would be better, and I got her two bottles, and when she had taken the last bottle she could do most of her house work. I got her one more which entirely cured her, and she looks the best I have seen her for four years. We recommended them to several of our neighbors who have used them with great success.

Just published, a new edition of Dr Culverwell's Celebrated essay

On the Radical Cure (without medicine) of Seminal Weakness, or Spermatorrhœa, induced by Self-Abuse; Involuntary Emissions, Impotency, Nervous Debility, and Impediments to Marriage generally; Consumption, Epilepsy, and Fits; mental and physical incapacity, etc.

☞ Price in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents.

The world renowned Author, in this admirable Lecture, clearly proves from his own experience, that the awful consequences of self-abuse may be effectually removed without medicine, and without dangerous surgical operations; bougies, instruments, rings or cordials—pointing out a mode of cure, at once certain and effectual, by which every sufferer, no matter what his conditions may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately, and radically.

This lecture will prove a boon to thousands and thousands.

"RIVERSIDE"

Lots For Sale.

That beautiful tract of Land known as the

on the bluff west of Massillon, and on the western bank of the Tuscarawas river, together with the joining lands has just been divided up into town lots, which are recorded as the Riverside Addition to the town of Massillon.

The lots are of good size and will be sold at such easy terms of payment as to place a home within the reach of all. The beauty of the location is unsurpassed and we believe it is a conceded fact that a location on the west bank of a running stream of water is always more healthy than one on the east bank.

It is apparent to all that the business and population of Massillon are very rapidly increasing—it is also apparent that public attention is directed to the west side of the river as the most desirable point for a home now in the market, or that probably ever will be in the market again. We think therefore that it is safe to predict that in a very few years this grand addition

RIVERSIDE,

Will be covered over with dwelling houses, which will be occupied by a large proportion of the busy citizens of the city of Massillon.

Every man who has a family or ever expects to have one ought to have a home in his own right, then he will be independent, if not rich. A better opportunity will never again be offered of securing one so desirable, so cheap, and so easily paid for.

Also a very desirable out lot, of about eight acres, adjoining Massillon, on the Canton road, will divide well into three or four pasture lots. Also some beautiful lots in the east part of the city.

The plots may be examined, and lots selected at my store. [292] P. G. ALBRIGHT

CITY LIMITS.—We last week noticed that the case of J E McLain, relator, against the city of Massillon, respondent, had been decided in favor of the city, and that the limits as fixed by the Commissioners had been confirmed by the court, Hon Judge Frease presiding. A great deal of testimony included in maps, records and exhibits was heard, pro and con, and the questions involved were argued elaborately by Messrs. Bierce & Pease, for the relator, and by R H Folger, city solicitor, and Hon J A Ambler, for the respondent. Mr Geo E Baldwin, of Canton, was also retained by the city, and aided in the trial. We suppose the question to be now definitely settled, and that the city limits are fixed to remain until they shall be again extended in obedience to the wants of the people's interests.

No small cause of complaint among many of our citizens who have occasion to travel southward, arises from the practice of boys (not all of them little fellows either) going into the canal or basin—of course entirely naked, in the evenings, long before it is dark. The indecency of such a custom cannot be too strongly reprimanded, especially near thoroughfares where hundreds of ladies and gentlemen are constantly passing at all times of the day. To do so in the borough limits (and there is where the offense is often complained of) subjects the perpetrators to punishment, and if any of the police notice such violations of common decency they will be very apt to make the perpetrators suffer for their temerity. It is well enough for people to wash all over, and do it daily, but civilization and our municipal regulations require that the ceremony be not done in public—it is entirely a private affair.

Within the last week a much improved awning has been put up in front of Mr Ertle's meat market, on Main street, which is the admiration of all who have seen it. The device is that of Miller & McClellan, and is so fixed as to be rolled up compactly by the side of the building, or extended across the sidewalk by a moments work. It is ingenious, simple and efficient, and far ahead of anything else in that line.

The reader will notice an advertisement of the Alliance College in to-day's paper, a matter which we overlooked in the specials of last week. Elder A B Way, the soliciting agent, has done much to place this prosperous institution on a firm basis; and aided as he is, by a well qualified faculty it will continue to flourish under their auspices. The students from this place in attendance on its instructions are well pleased with the attentions they receive and the progress they are making in the acquisition of useful knowledge.

Raspberries are crowding in upon us, so that they can be had pretty cheap; and last Saturday green corn and 1369 apples were in our market. Although the last named articles commanded tall prices they found purchasers. New potatoes are becoming quite abundant.

Hess & Bro., in addition to their extensive stove and tinware trade have a variety of lightning rods, regarded as among the best kinds, which they are prepared to furnish and put up on easy terms and at short notice. As to stoves they have enough to set up a good many families with this indispensable piece of kitchen ware.

Mr Estep continues to improve, and is progressing quite as well with that fractured leg as could be expected, and we hope to see him out in a few weeks.

Mr Pease, also, notwithstanding the critical nature of the wound he received on the 3d inst., we are gratified to learn, is getting along comfortably. The ball, however, has not yet been extracted, still he may be able to get well, as many have done before under like circumstances.

The American Odd Fellow: John W Orr, publisher, No 96 Nassau st., New York. $2 per year. The July number of this magazine (the official organ of the order) contains a great variety of leading matter interesting to the fraternity and home circle. A fine steel portrait of Grand Sire Farnsworth accompanies this number. The publisher announces that the American Odd Fellow will be materially enlarged and improved with the beginning of its ninth year, in January next.

Mr J L Durgin, opposite the opera house, has just received another large assortment of clocks which he is now selling at lower rates than can be found elsewhere in the city. He is also doing a very fine business in the way of watch, clock, and jewelry repairing, his work so far having given the most perfect satisfaction; all his work being warranted. Persons who are desirous, therefore, of having a good job done will do well to give him a call before going elsewhere. Be sure and remember the place, opposite main entrance opera hall, and give him a call.

The partnership heretofore existing between H Gribble & Son in the livery business has been dissolved, and as may be seen by his notice in another column, Peter Gribble has taken entire control of the establishment. Among all parties Peter is a popular young gentleman, and can furnish as good turnouts as are to be found—always accommodating and ever ready to oblige his customers there is no fear but that he will make his livery a complete success. He continues at the well known stand at the corner of Mill and Plum streets, where our citizens can find good, safe teams and elegant conveyances at all times. Give him a call.

This week a large portion of the wheat in this vicinity will be cut, as it is quite ripe enough for this purpose. It is unfortunate that the weather continues showery at times, which thus far has interfered with taking up the harvest. Farmers have a heavy undertaking on hand, and it is possible that some of them may labor under great disadvantages from want of help.

The wool market continues, and purchases are made daily without varying much from the prices before quoted—40 to 45 cents. Mr Warwick is dealing largely in the article.

The dry goods merchants of this place commenced closing their houses at 8 o'clock, on last Monday evening, and will continue to do so daily until the first of November excepting Saturdays. It is a wholesome arrangement, as the clerks and proprietors can now get out to enjoy the fresh air. The first evening of closing customers could be seen at the doors, but they will soon learn otherwise.

Saturday evening last Main street for one or two squares was full of people. On that day the miners were paid, and large numbers of them came to town to rid themselves of some of their money, which they no doubt succeded in doing. Lager was a staple article on that evening, and a great many pints and quarts changed owners.

We generally print more papers than our patrons need, but for the last few weeks an unusual demand was made for them, so that many inquirers had to go away disappointed. A good plan to make sure of getting the Independent once a week is to subscribe for it then there will be no difficulty in having a copy.

The Universe.—The second volume of the Chicagoan commence, with the title changed to THE UNIVERSE, the first number of which is received. It is enlarged to an eight-page sheet, and contains the commencement of a story by Mrs. Corbin, entitled, Married, or a Woman's Deception; a capital story by Mrs. Jennie T. Hazen—Daisy, or the Married Man's Story, and a great variety of other matter. Among the principal articles is one on Spiritualism, a Moral and Social Necessity, by Robert Dale Owen, and many on various phases of the Woman Question, and Spiritualism. Published weekly, at $2,50 a year, by H. N. F. Lewis, 113 Madison street, Chicago.

Hearth and Home,

A model sixteen page weekly, published by Pettengill, Bates & Co. 37 Park Row, New-York, and edited by Donald G. Mitchell and Harriet Beecher Stowe. The enterprising publishers also have the aid as correspondents of numerous other writers of broad and well-earned repute. A premium of one hundred dollars was offered by the publishers for the best poem, and well qualified judges selected the following from a number of competing efforts as deserving this distinction. The prose will commend their judgment:

THE KINGDOM OF HOME.

BY WM. RANKIN DURYEE.

Dark is the night, and fitful and drearily
Rushes the wind like the waves of the sea;
Little care I, as here I sing cheerily
Wife at my side and baby on knee:
King! king, crown me the king:
Home is the kingdom, and Love is the king!

Flashes the firelight upon the dear faces,
Dearer and dearer as onward we go,
Forces the shadow behind us, and places
Brightness around us with warmth in the glow.
King! king, crown me the king:
Home is the kingdom and love is the king!

Flashes the lovelight, increasing the glory,
Beaming from bright eyes with warmth of the soul,
Telling of trust and content the sweet story,
Lifting the shadows that over us roll.
King, king, crown me the king.
Home is the kingdom and love is the king!

Richer than miser with perishing treasure,
Served with a service no conquest could bring;
Happy with fortune that words cannot measure,
Light-hearted I on the hearthstone can sing.
King, king, crown me the king:
Home is the kingdom and Love is the king!

YOUNG AMERICA.—The brightest and best of all the juvenile magazines. Doesticks said he liked the Episcopal church, because the minister let the people talk back. Mr Demorest understands this; he lets his little readers do their own talking, or, at any rate, talk back, and they seem to like it, and are at any rate devoted to Young America! Certainly this little magazine combines more instruction of the very best kind, with amusement, than any magazine we ever saw. $1,50 per year with a premium. Publication office, 838 Broadway, N Y.

DEMOREST'S MAGAZINE.—This is really the gem of the ladies monthlies. Its patterns and fashions are always fresh, full and original, and its reading matter varied, and full of practical interest. Its new department, the Ladies Club, has struck a vein, and has become immensely popular, while its illustrations are more numerous and better than ever. $3 a year, with a premium. 838 Broadway, N Y.

CLEVELAND, O., June 24, 1869.

WHITTLESEY PROP. MED. CO.,
NORWALK, O.,

Gentlemen—Please send us at once Five Gross Dyspepsia Cure. We wish to say a word in regard to the merit of your remedy. As we were induced to make the first purchase through the earnest recommendation of acquaintances who had used the medicine, we have given the Cure personal attention, recommending it in all cases for Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, and are pleased to say that, in no instance where one bottle has been taken for those diseases, has it failed to give immediate relief, and resulted in permanent cure. Hence it gives us greater satisfaction to sell your Dyspepsia Cure, than any patent medicine we ever had in our house.

Very Respectfully Yours,
STRONG & ARMSTRONG,
315-4t Wholesale Druggists,
199 Superior and 62 Frankfort streets.

It is earnestly requested that all those who borrowed dishes or other vessels in which to take strawberries home from the G A R festival, will return them to the store of McLain Dangler & Co., as soon as possible.

Bro Dewey, proprietor of the Kent Bulletin, last week, indulged in over a column of good, solid scolding at those who receive gratuitous favors at his hands, through the paper, and then slip off to some other place to get a little job done, for which they have paid more than he offered to do the work. To say the least this is very unfair treatment; but our Kent brother is not alone in such an experience.

Ricketts & Demuth, proprietors of the new drug store in the opera building, are doing a fine and profitable business, which has been the case with them ever since their opening, nearly one month since. Their establishment is well furnished with every material in their line, put up in the neatest and most approved style, and consists of as pure articles as the trade affords. Patent medicines, drugs, paints, oils, perfumes, and everything else pertaining to the trade can be procured at this new house. Prompt, obliging and accommodating, customers will do well to call at this establishment and purchase what they want of the vast variety on hand.

MUCH NEEDED.—Passing along Main street the other day our attention was called to a patent awning on exhibition in front of Ertle's meat shop. Upon examination, we found it to be one of the handsomest and most useful inventions of its kind of the age. Every business front in the city should be ornamented and protected by one of the new awnings; the cost is about the same as an old style awning, and is so arranged as to display a sign at all times, and to be readily adjusted and thrown out or in with great facility, and when rolled up protects itself from the weather so that one canvass will last many years, and in the end prove much cheaper than the ordinary modes of getting shade. Upon inquiring we found it to be a patent of 1867 and is being exhibited by Mr. McClellan of Ohio, who desires to sell the right for Ohio or any other state. It is in our judgment one of these things possessing peculiar merit and value, and we hope that some of our enterprising young men will take hold of it, and supply our city with it, so that we may ultimately get rid of the unsightly posts and rails now obstructing and marring the beauty of our streets.

Let not Prejudice many your Reason.

It is a fact that, in the minds of many persons, a prejudice exists against what are called patent medicines; but why should this prevent you resorting to an article that has such an array of testimony to support it as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters? Physicians prescribe it; why should you discard it? Judges, usually considered men of talent have used and do use it in their families, why should you reject it? Let not your prejudices usurp your reason to the everlasting injury of your health. If you are sick, and require a medicine, try these bitters.

When the bodily energies are worn out by anxiety, and need a stimulant, this is the best that can be used. It is tempered and modified by hygienic herbs and roots, which prevent it from fevering the blood; and hence it does not produce temporary excitement, to be followed by injurious reaction but communicates a permanent potency to the entire vital reaction, but communicates a permanent potency to the entire vital organization. Some of its herbal constituents are slightly soporific, so that in cases where sleeplessness is one of the accompaniments of nervous disease, a dose taken toward bedtime will tend to produce quiet and refreshing slumber. For palpitation of the heart, tremors, hysterics, fainting fits, general restlessness and the causless fears and distressing fancies to which ladies are especially subject, under certain morbid conditions of mind and body peculiar to their sex, the bitters will be found the most agreeable and certain of all counter irritants.

The constitutionally nervous may readily keep their infirmity in constant check by the use of this healthful vegetable tonic, and those who have shattered their nerves, as the phrase is, either by imprudent indulgences or undue physical or intellectual labor, will find in this vitalizing elixir a prompt restorative. 5' 5-1w

Brandreth's Pills.

They remove all bad accumulations from the bowels, and purify and invigorate the system. All whose health is not perfect owe it to themselves to take a few doses of Brandreth's Pills, because the seeds of decay are constantly eradicated by their use, and the principle of life confirmed, thus giving a vigor of body and mind to a period when we have been used to see the faltering steps and enfeebled intellect.

Gen Paez the distinguished liberator of Venezuela, says he has used them as his only medicine for thirty years, with the most satisfactory results.

For costiveness, dyspepsia, and as a family medicine they are unrivalled.

Daniel I Tenney, Esq., Astor House, N Y, cured by Brandreth's Pills of dyspepsia and costiveness when all other means had failed.

A gentleman whose father died of consumption at 36 years, was also attacked, when about 21, by the disease. He had cough, night sweats, and general debility. Doctors recommended cod liver oil, but he wasted away. At last he determined to use Brandreth's Pills. In two months they made him a sound man.

The Kidneys.

THE KIDNEYS.—THE KIDNEYS are two in number, situated at the upper part of the loin, surrounded by fat, and consisting of three parts, viz: the anterior, the interior, and the exterior. The interior absorbs. Interior consists of tissues or veins, which serve as a deposit for the urine and convey it to the exterior. The exterior is a conductor also, terminating in a single tube, and called the Ureter. The ureters are connected with the bladder.

The bladder is composed of various coverings or tissues, divided into parts, viz: The Upper the Lower, the Nervous and the Mucous. The upper expels, the lower retains. Many have a desire to urinate without the ability to retain; others urinate without the ability to retain. This frequently occurs in children. To cure these affections we must bring into action the muscles, which are engaged in their various functions. If they are neglected, Gravel or Dropsy may ensue.

The reader must also be made aware, that however slight the attack it is sure to affect the bodily health and mental powers, as our health and blood are supported from these sources.

GOUT OR RHEUMATISM.—Pain occurring in the loins is indicative of the above diseases. They occur in persons disposed to acid stomach and chalky concretions.

THE GRAVEL.—The Gravel ensues from neglect or improper treatment of the kidneys. These organs being weak the water is not expelled from the bladder but allowed to remain; it becomes feverish and sediment forms. It is from this deposit that the stone is formed and gravel ensues.

DROPSY is a collection of water in some parts of the body, and bears different names according to the parts affected, viz: when generally diffused over the body it is called Anasarca; when of the abdomen, Ascites; when of the chest, Hydrothorax.

TREATMENT.—Helmbold's highly concentrated compound Extract Buchu is decidedly one of the best remedies for diseases of the bladder kidneys, gravel, dropsical swellings, rheumatism and gouty affections. Under this head we have arranged Dysuria, or difficulty and pain in passing water, scanty secretion, or small and frequent discharges of water: Stranguary or stoppage of water: Hematuria, or bloody urine: Gout and Rheumatism of the kidneys without any change in quantity, but increase of color, or dark water. It, as always highly recommended by the late Dr Physick in those affections.

This medicine increases the power of digestion, and excites the absorbents into healthy exercise, by which the watery or calcareous depositions and all unnatural enlargements, as well as pain and inflamation are reduced, and it is taken by men, women and children. Directions for use and diet accompany,

H T HELMBOLD, Druggist:—Dear Sir—I have been a sufferer for upward of twenty years with gravel, bladder and kidney affections, during which time I have used various medicinal preparations, and had been under treatment of the most eminent physicians experiencing but little relief.

Having seen your preparations extensively advertised I consulted with my family physician in regard to using your Extract Buchu. I did this because I had used all kinds of advertised remedies, and had found them worthless, and some quite injurious: in fact I despaired of ever getting well, and determined to use no remedies hereafter, unless I knew of the ingredients. It was this that prompted me to use your remedy. As you advertised that it was composed of buchu, cubebs and juniper berries, it occurred to me and my physician as an excellent combination, and, with his advice, after an examination of the article, and consulting again with the druggist I concluded to try it. I commenced its use about eight months ago at which time I was confined to my room. From the first bottle I was astonished and gratified at the beneficial effect, and after using it three weeks was enabled to walk out. I felt much like writing you a full statement of my case at that time, but tho't my improvement might only be temporary, and therefore concluded to defer and see if it would effect a perfect cure, knowing then it would be of greater value to you, and more satisfactory to me.

I am now able to report that a cure is effected after using the remedy for five months. I have not used any now for three months, and feel as well in all respects as I ever did. Your buchu being devoid of any unpleasant taste and odor, a nice tonic and invigorator of the system, I do not mean to be without it whenever occasion may require its use in such affections

We do not wish to inform you, reader, that Dr Wonderful, or any other man, has discovered a remedy that cures consumption, when the lungs are half consumed, in short will cure all diseases whether of the mind, body or estate, make men live forever, and leave death to play for want of work, and is designed to make our sublunary sphere a blissful paradise, to which Eden itself would be but a cradle. You have heard enough of that kind of humbuggery, and we do not wonder that you have by this time become disgusted with it. But when we tell you that Dr Sage's Catarrh Remedy will positively cure the worst cases of Catarrh, we only assert that which thousands can testify. Try it and be convinced. We will pay $500 reward for a case of Catarrh that we cannot cure.

A GREAT REMEDY
Throat and Lung Diseases.
Pine Tree Tar Cordial.

It is the vital principle of the Pine Tree, obtained by a peculiar process in the distillation of tar, by which its highest medical properties are retained.

It is the only safeguard and reliable remedy which has ever been prepared from the juice of the pine tree.

It invigorates the digestive organs and restores the appetite.

It strengthens the debilitated system.

It purifies and enriches the blood, and expels from the system the corruption which scrofula breeds on the lungs.

It dissolves the mucus or phlegm which stops the air passages of the lungs.

Its healing principle acts upon the irritated surface of the lungs and throat, penetrating to each diseased part, relieving pain and subduing inflamation.

It is the result of years of study and experiment, and it is offered to the afflicted with the positive assurance of its power to cure the following diseases, if the patient has not too long delayed a resort to the means of cure.—

Consumption of the lungs, Cough, Sore Throat, and Breast, Bronchitis, Liver Complaint, Bleeding and Bleeding Piles, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Diptheria, &c.

We are often asked why are not other remedies in the market for consumption, coughs, colds, and other pulmonary affections equal to Dr Wishart's Pine Tree Tar Cordial. We answer—

1st. It cures not by stopping cough but by loosening and assisting nature to through off the unhealthy matter collected about the throat and bronchial tubes, causing irritation and cough.

2d. Most throat and lung remedies are composed of anodynes, which allay the cough for a while, but by their constringing effects the fiber becomes hardened and the unhealthy fluids coagulate and are retained in the system, causing disease almost beyond the control of our most eminent physicians.

3d. The Pine Tree Tar Cordial with its assistants, are preferable, because they remove the causes of irritation of the mucuous membrane and both of the chial tubes, assist the lungs to act and throw off the unhealthy secretions, and purify the blood thus scientifically making the cure perfect.

Dr Wishart has on file at his office hundreds and thousands of certificates of cures from men and women of unquestionable character who were once given up to die, but through the providence of God were completely restored to health by the Pine Tree Tar Cordial. A physician in attendance who can be consulted in person or by mail, free of charge. Price $1,50 per bottle, $11 per doz. Sent by express on receipt of price. Address, I. "Home, Sweet Home"—The Song and its Writer.

The country, therefore, owes no ordinary debt of gratitude to John Howard Payne, who, if he did not write enough to entitle him to a recognized place among the authors of this class has at least given us one song which is already beyond the reach of chance or change—a household word sacred and secure. If fame is to be estimated by widespread popularity, we had rather be the author of Home, Sweet Home, than all the verses of all the poets our land has known from its earliest age to the present hour. There is little in the ballad when we subject it to critical analysis, and yet this very simplicity is the precious gem which has snatched it from forgetfulness, and blended the familiar lines with the holiest associations of the fireside. How curious that this humble daisy, this "wee, modest, crimson tipped flower" should grow and blossom into fair renown when so many monarchs of the forest die grove in the dust, unnoticed and unknown.

The more important facts of Payne's life require but brief mention. He was born in New York, June 9th 1792, and at an early age manifested decided literary and dramatic talent. When only thirteen years of age he conducted a small periodical called the Thespian Mirror, which attracted the attention of a gentleman named Seaman, who generously offered to defray the expenses of his education at Union College.

Pecuniary difficulties which involved his father forced him to leave this institution before the completion of his studies, and, in order to support his impoverished family, Payne went on the stage, making his debut at the Park Theater, New York, February 24th, 1809, in the character of Young Norval. His success was so unmistakable that he continued his new profession, performing in the eastern cities, and in 1813 went to England, where he received a cordial welcome, and became a great favorite. He remained abroad for nearly twenty years, leading a Bohemian life, and figured alternately as an actor, playwright and manager, gaining some reputation and little money.

Home, Sweet Home was penned in a garret of the Palais Royal, Paris, when poor Payne was so utterly destitute and friendless that he knew not where the next day's dinner was coming from.

It appears originally in a diminutive opera called "Carl, the Maid of Milan." The opera is seldom heard of now, but the song grows nearer and dearer to us as the years roll away, for "it is not for an age, but for all time." More than once the unfortunate author, walking the streets of London or Paris amid the storm and darkness, hungry, houseless and penniless, saw the cheerful light gleaming through the windows of happy homes, and heard the music of his own song drifting out upon the gloomy night to mock the wanderer's heart with visions of comfort and joy, whose blessed reality was forever denied to him. 'Home, Sweet Home' was written by a homeless man.'

In 1832, Payne returned to this country, and after pursuing literary avocations with indifferent success for a few years, was finally appointed Consul at Tunis, where he died June 5th, 1852. One passage in his ill starred career tinges it with a hue of melancholy romance, and perhaps explains the secret of his restless, erratic character.

Maria Mayo, afterwards Mrs. Gen. Scott, was a queenly beauty in her youthful days, whose charms of person and mind made her the acknowledged belle of that venerable state whose soil has been no less prolific of fascinating women than of gallant men. The legend prevails in Richmond that Payne met Miss Mayo and fell madly in love with her. The homage of a poet could hardly be other than flattering, even to one whose shrine was worshipped by scores of richer devotees, and possibly he mistook the smiles she gave for the evidence of reciprocated passion; but, be this as it may, the same old story was enacted. He staked his happiness, his peace, on woman's love and—lost.

Thenceforth life had no attractions for him, and he sought an exile to the barren shores of Africa as a welcome relief from the bitter disappointment which had crushed out hope and ambition here. The sands of the desert have long since covered the grave of John Howard Payne, and the place where "after life's fitful fevers, he sleeps well," is unknown; but "Home, Sweet Home," is a monument which will carry his name and fame to the remotest posterity, and stand firm when effigies of marble and of bronze shall have sunk into indistinguishable decay.

Decay of a Great Chinese City.

Rev. John L. Nevias writes to the New York Observer: "Hang Chow has long had the reputation, both among natives and foreigners, of being one of the most beautiful cities in China, and Marco Polo described it in his time, as one of the finest in the world. It is said to have been, a few hundred years ago, more than thirty miles in circumference; and Chinese records represent its walls, during former dynasties as enclosing several high hills beyond the southern limits of the present city. Ten years ago when I spent several months there, the space within the walls was almost entirely occupied with buildings, and closely built suburbs extended from three to four miles in opposite directions, north and south. The city was then the most interesting and the cleanest which I have ever seen in China. It now presents a scene of desolation which it is painful to witness. About nine years ago it was taken by the Tai Ping insurgents, who held it only a few days. Their object was to divert the imperial army from the rebel capital, Nankin, which they were then besieging. At that time it is supposed that about twenty thousand of the inhabitants of Hang Chow perished, the whole number being one million. Many of those who then died were women, who, in their terror, committed suicide, either by hanging themselves, taking opium or drowning themselves in wells or canals.

A few years later, when Hang Chow was again attacked by the rebels, it offered a determined resistance. It was for a long time in a state of siege. All provisions in the city were exhausted. Even bunches of grass were sold for food at exorbitant prices. The leather of shoes and trunks was boiled and eaten. and the flesh of those who died from want of food was not unfrequently eat by the survivors. The city was finally taken, and the Tartar city included within the walls was utterly demolished, not a single house being left standing. Larger portions of the main city were also burned, and now present a scene of blackened walls and shapeless ruins. All with whom I have conversed on the subject concur in the testimony that no more than one-fifth of the present occupants of the city were included among its inhabitants ten years ago. It is more than enough to make the heart sick to wander through its desolated streets and imagine the scenes of horror and desolation which they have witnessed.

Make Home Happy.

The time will come when children will not desire to be continually under the parent's roof. Let them out in the day-time. Children should never be in the streets in the dark. Older persons than children cannot bear that very well. But in the day time, swell the bounds as far as practical. Err in that direction rather than in the other. Over-restraint upon an impetuous nature is demoralizing. But having let them out, draw them back again by making the house pleasanter than any other place. Social enjoyment; innocent games; amusements in which, if possible, parents shall both participate; the resources of art, and science and music and dancing—and anybody that will not let a child dance in the house hold ought himself to be set dancing to another tune!—these things ought to be encouraged. Whatever will make the child say, "Nowhere else am I so happy as at home," whatever will build it up amply, furnishing it with the material of a joyous life—that honors and dignifies the house.

Therefore it is that pleasures sought away from home should be taken, as sweetmeats are, not as food, but as occasional mouthfuls. And in all pleasures taken away from home, selection should be made, and those should be preferred which take the family. If it is right for your child to go to the theatre., it is right for the father and mother to go with him. If it is right for the daughter to go with her beau to the opera, it is right for the family to go. It is better to go in a party as a family, than for one to go alone. It is solitary drinking that curses men. It is solitary enjoyments that corrupts the household. And if you are not provided at home with all that is needful, and you go forth for entertainment and instruction, seek those things to which the whole or major part of the family can go. Separate not the children from the parents, nor the children one another.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Let Us be More Sociable.

In order to increase the sum of human happiness, we should cultivate kind and fraternal feelings with one another. A true life consists in something else than accumulating property. We do not and can not "live by bread alone." A writer in the Journal of Agriculture discourses on this subject most beautifully as follows:

The sole object and aim of too many individuals seems to be to get gain, "grab all," let the consequences be what they may to others. The desire to accumulate wealth, regardless of the comfort and social happiness of our neighbors and the interchange of friendly sentiments, should be ignored. On the other hand we should so live and act that the generous impulses of our own hearts would prompt us to extend the hand of fellowship to all our neighbors and looking them squarely in the eye, feel that glorious inward consciousness that we had never wronged them in thought, word or deed. Then, too, let words of kindness be spoken; let little deeds of love be done; let the principles of the golden rule be exemplified in our daily lives; let us be more sociable, and cultivate our convivial qualities by frequent interchanges of friendly greetings at social gatherings; let no aristocracy be acknowledged, save that of the intellect; let us beautify our homes; let us make them what they should be by cherishing a love for the beautiful, so that

Blessings may attend us forever.
And whatever we pray for or do;
May our lives be one grand endeavor
To type the pure, the good and the true.

Endless Day.

Nothing strikes a stranger more forcibly, if he visits Sweden at the season of the year when the days are longest, than the absence of night. Mr Baird relates some interesting facts. He arrived at Stockholm from Gottenburg, four hundred miles distant, in the morning, and in the afternoon went to see some friends. He returned about midnight, when it was as light as it is in England an hour before sunset. You can see distinct, but all was quiet in the streets; it seemed as though the inhabitants had all gone away or were dead. The sun in June goes down in Stockholm a little before ten o'clock. There is a great illumination all night, as the sun passes round the earth toward the north pole; and the refraction of its rays is such that you can see to read at midnight without any artificial light. The first morning Dr Baird awoke in Stockholm he was surprised to see the sun shining in his room. He looked at his watch and found it only three o'clock. The next time he awoke it was five o'clock, but there were persons in the street.

The Swedes in the city are not very industrious. There is a mountain at the head of Bothnia, where on the 21st of June the sun does not appear to go down at all. The steamboat goes up from Stockholm for the purpose of conveying those who are curious to witness the phenomenon. It occurs only one night. The sun reaches the horizon, you can see the whole face of it, and in five minutes more it begins to rise. At the north cape, latitude 72 degrees above the horizon at midnight. In the winter time the sun disappears and is not seen for weeks; then it comes and remains for ten or fifteen minutes, after which it descends, and finally does not set at all, but makes almost a circle round the heavens. Dr Baird was asked how they managed in those latitudes with hired persons, and what they considered a day. He replied that they worked by the hour, and twelve hours was considered a day's work. Birds and animals take their accustomed rest at the usual hour, whether the sun goes down or not.

The Sprague-Craig case produced a literature in Chicago. The following—the first from the Tribune and the second from the Evening Journal.

TO AMANDA.

Amanda Craig, that gushing girl,
May now dismiss her scholars,
Since she has won, from poor old Sprague,
A hundred thousand dollars.

TO ELISHA.

And now yer munny's hern.

Downe with yer grenbax, lett'm trott,
So Mandy Kraig may buy
A luvyer who no tumor's gott,
Nor weekness of the i.

And the Chicago Post has received, it tells us, advance sheets of a new dictionary of the English language, by Elisha C Sprague, of which the following are extracts:

Arisiplace, a dicese of the kutical and soforth. cosing soar ise.
Breeches, of promise, a De Viss of the deavul to cheet a man out of his one munny.
Gury, a Lott of iliterat iggno ram us to help the A forsed deavul.

Speling, 1 of the Loast artts.
Swealing, a komplaint of the ise Allso of lawyers heds.
Wimmen, a badd inyestment, especially skule marms.

It would be unfair to omit the following, in making up the literary archives of the Sprague family.

Amanda's mother cried one day—
"A man—a man, Amanda!
Why should you live single, say,
When husbands are so handy?'

"I know a man, Amanda dear,
A man, a man, Amanda,
Whose income's forty thousand a year,
He'll keep you, oh. so grandy!"

"And what's his name, mamma?" "'Tis Sprague,
But he's no gay young dandy;'
"No matter, I'll make him rhyme with Craig,"
Replied the fair Amanda.

The Eclipse.

Common people have hardly given a thought to smoked glasses, but the astronomers of this and other lands are already putting their instruments in order to observe the eclipse of the sun that is announced to take place on the 7th proximo. Prof Harkness is to set up his observatory in Iowa, the various colleges along the route of the shadow will each turn its pooded telescopic eye up to the obscured luminary, and several European savans are expected here to enjoy the sight. For, like the peace jubilee, this is to be a strictly American affair. The eclipse which is total begins somewhere in the Pacific, east of Japan, enters our continent by the way of Alaska, where it changes its date in conformity to our institutions, runs south-easterly through British America and across the glorious union, emerging into the Atlantic off the coast of North Carolina from Beaufort, about sunset. The shadow will reach us shortly after five o'clock in the afternoon, and will hardly pass over before the sun sets. The wonderful regularity with which the vast machinery of our solar system runs its course of centuries enables the advanced science of to day to predict months and years in advance, the precise moment when the two luminaries which were created to rule the day and the night will be in a direct line with the lenses of the astronomer's telescope, or the scared eye of the an Alaska savage on Behring's Straits.

One of the most awful pictures of the effects of drinking is given us by Isaiah: "Woe unto them that rise up early that they may follow strong drink; that continue until night, until wine inflame them! And the harp and the viol, and the tarbet and pipe and wine are in their feasts; but they regard not the work of the Lord, neither consider the operations of his hands. Therefore my people are gone into captivity, because they have no knowledge; and their honorable men were famished, and their multitude dried up with thirst. Therefore hell has enlarged herself, and opened her mouth without measure; and their glory, and their multitude, and their pomp, and he that rejoiceth, shall descend into it."

GIVE THE PRINTERS FAIR PLAY.—We have a piece of advice which we wish to impress firmly and indelibly upon the public mind, and that is to give the printers fair play. Do not forget that it costs something to puff as well as to advertise, and never sponge upon a printer in any way whatever. It is the printer't ink that makes nine-tenths of our fortunes; it takes money to buy ink, type, and paper, and yet, after all this, few are the thanks the printer gets. Give the printer fair play, and give up all hopes of gratuitous puffing, &c. Daniel Webster was 'mighty near right' when he remarked of the press, 'Small is the sum required to patronize a newspaper; amply rewarded is its patron. I care not how humble and unpretending the gazette it is almost an impossibility to fill it without putting into it something that is worth the price of subscription.'
